Dr. Bliss on Garfield's Illness.

Dr. Bliss is now engaged in preparing a book of details in regard to the president's case. He received during the period the president was prostrated, hundreds of letters making suggestions as to treatment, etc. and these he proposes to incorporate in the forthcoming volume. He will also make use of newspaper comments on the treatment of the case and intimates that he may take occasion to answer some of these.

Secretary Hunt to Remain.

There is a report now that Hunt will remain in the cabinet in his present position. One of Hunt's closest friends says the talk of the president to Hunt has been of a character to retain him. Hunt expects to remain. He said this morning the talk that he will get Bancroft Davis' place on the court of claims is untrue, as he wouldn't accept it. He was offered the circuit judgeship made vacant by the appointment of Woods to the supreme bench by President Garfield before the latter was shot and would not take it. Present indications are that Hunt will remain in the cabinet for a few months.

Don't Read Like Blaine's.

It is reported that the president's message with reference to the South American question does not read at all like the manuscript furnished by Blaine, as the views of the department on the subject. It is the habit of heads of departments to furnish the executive facts bearing upon their branch of service for the president's resume of the state of the union and the consequent recommendations. It is understood that Blaine, in transmitting the state department recommendation had incorporated language altogether too vigorous for discretion in regard to Chili and Peru. The president quietly took his own views of the proprieties of the situation and modified the language to a more calm expression which was reserved in the message.

Whittaker's Case.

It is rumored in army circles that Advocate General Swaim has affirmed the finding of the court in the Whittaker case. He has spent months going over the 3000 pages of testimony and has given the matter the most thorough sifting. It is said that he finds that the court martial convicts Whittaker of mutilating his own ears, and he maintains the verdict as based upon the evidence bearing upon the case. It is believed, therefore, that the end of the whole matter will be that Whittaker will be dismissed from the army and his case will disappear at last from public view.

Busy Keifer.

Keifer is devoting the greater part of his time to the preparation of lists of committees. The work will, probably not be completed until the latter part of next week or week after. It is not expected the committees will be thoroughly organized before the holiday recess.

Cabinet Meeting.

At the cabinet meeting to-day all the members except Kirkwood and MacVeagh were present. The session lasted only an hour. The question of organizing a better form of government for Alaska and enforcing its recognition by natives, was informally discussed. The trouble with cowboys on the Mexican border, also received attention, and it is believed some action will soon be taken to protect the frontiers, both of the United States and Mexico from depredations by this class of marauders.

High Toned Criminals.

U. S. Attorney Bliss for the district of Missouri, telegraphing concerning the conviction of William and Addison F. Burns, charged with forgery and uttering forged titles to Missouri lands, says that Burns Brothers were the most extensive dealers in the United States in these fraudulent titles. Evidence showed their income from this source the past eight years was upwards of $800,000. Their wealth and social standing proved a serious obstacle in the way of prosecution. Every means that money and influence could command were used in these cases. Witnesses had been tampered with and threatened.

The Virginia Senatorship.

RICHMOND, Dec. 9.—Readjuster members of the general assembly decided to hold a caucus Tuesday night for the nomination of a candidate for the U. S. senate. Republican members of the legislature also held a conference. It is reported they unanimously agreed to insist on having the senator. Democratic readjusters favor H. H. Riddleberger. It is confidently asserted to-night that John F. Lewis will be the republican choice.

Gorham to Mahone.

The Republican publishes the following:

OFFICE "NATIONAL REPUBLICAN,"
WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 9.

Dear General: I had a conversation with the president this evening in relation to statements in to-day's Post and Star of this city attributing to him certain views on the senatorial question in Virginia. In those statements he is represented as expressing a wish for the defeat of Riddleberger. I learn from him that it is wholly without foundation. In the interview which has been so misrepresented he was told that it had been stated that he was taking action in behalf of Riddleberger. He merely states that he has not interfered at all. He suggested that Lewis have a friendly talk with you on the subject. The president expressed no desire as to the political antecedents of the man who should be elected, nor did he say one word which, correctly stated, would in the slightest degree embarrass or call in question your course. On the contrary, he desires it understood that he has no views which, in any manner, conflict with the friendly sentiments hitherto expressed to you by yours very truly,

GEO. C. GORHAM.

RAILROAD MATTERS.

Railroad Combination.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Special from Sioux City: Rumor comes from a railroad source that there will be a close union, if not consolidation, about January 1st, between the Milwaukee & St. Paul and Canadian Pacific. This, if correct, explains how VanHorne will hold the superintendency of the Canadian Pacific and be his own successor on his old roads. The statement comes from good authority that the Milwaukee and St. Paul is still negotiating for control of the Sioux City and Pacific railroad. It is stated that the Southern Pacific, which road is to reach New Orleans over its own track next summer, will not stop there but build on fifty miles east to Ship Island. The island can be reached by bridging a narrow channel four miles wide by two long, and has an excellent harbor where the largest ships can load. It is to be made a port where California wheat is to be shipped abroad.

Crocker's Intentions.

The Chronicle publishes an interview with the president of the Southern Pacific, who states the road expects to carry a large part of the wheat of this state destined for Europe, and will probably carry one-third of next year's crop. If there is not sufficient ocean transportation obtainable at New Orleans the company will put on steamers. They expect to save the farmers of the state $3 a ton on freight. The new route particularly encourages shipment of flour and expects to bring a great number of immigrants back. If they can't get them at such rates as they would like they would take them at such as can be obtained. The tendency will be to lower fares and freights. The new road will have no appreciable effect on the business of the C. P., but will open up a new country and business for itself.

Railroad Conductors' Meeting.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 8.—The railroad conductors' convention elected R. B. Brown of the Louisville & Nashville road, president. The next annual meeting will be held at Milwaukee.

CRIMINAL NOTES.

An Atrocious Crime.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—This morning Paquillo Touuito, aged 2, an Italian living at 56 Thompson street, shot his wife Catharine through the head and killed her on the spot. Turning upon his mother-in-law, Maria Valenta, he shot her through the head, and next shot himself through the neck. Bespattered with the brains of his two victims and dripping with blood, he went to the Prince street police station and gave himself up.

Probably Lynched.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 9.—A few nights ago Wm. McCann, a merchant in Chambers county, was called up by some negroes and as soon as he opened the door was killed. The negro who confessed the crime was lodged in the Lafayette jail, and it is expected he has been lynched, as a great crowd was seen on the way to the jail.

A General Butchery.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 8.—Mrs. Winchester Armstrong and her mother were killed near Moscow, Lamar county, Alabama, while trying to rescue the child of a farmer from the hands of a crazy negro. The negro turned on them and brained them with an axe. Mr. Armstrong coming upon the scene shot the negro dead.

Another Hanging.

LITTLE ROCK, Dec. 9.—Frank Hall (colored) was executed at noon to-day for the murder of Paul Saunders, two years ago.

A Convict Killed.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Dec. 9.—Mongaro Kan, an Italian life convict, to-day killed Charles Williams, another convict.

ACCIDENTS.

Railway Collision.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 8.—A Post-Dispatch Kansas City special says: A collision of two freight trains occurred this morning on the Chicago & Alton road at Rock creek, six miles east of here. Damage $25,000. W. B. Craddock and Frank Kuhr, brakemen were badly injured and will die.

Railroad Accident.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 8.—As freight train No. 12, east bound, on the western division of the Wabash railroad was crossing a bridge over the Missouri river at St. Charles about 6 this afternoon, the eastern span of the bridge gave way and the entire train, composed of 32 cars, 13 of which were laden with live stock, was precipitated into the river about 80 feet below. The engineer, name unknown at this writing, is missing, but every one else on the train was saved except one or two of the crew, said to be badly wounded. Conductor Gratsberg and several stockmen were in the caboose, but they leaped out on the bridge as the train was falling and escaped injury. Cause of the accident is unknown, but one theory is the train was derailed. Wires are down and direct communication with St. Charles is cut off.

Fearful Explosion.

BRUSSELS, Dec. 9.—An explosion occurred in Cockerill's colliery yesterday, causing the death of 66 persons.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

Hanlan Challenged.

ST. JOHNS, Dec. 9.—Wallace Ross challenges Hanlan to row at St. Johns, Portland or on the Thames, where Boyd may enter.

The statement published heretofore that the contractors for the flax-seed grown about Moscow, in Northern Idaho had not been able to meet their obligations because they could not get the seed shipped below, is an error. Bad condition of the roads has prevented the farmers from hauling it in for delivery.

THE GUITEAU TRIAL.

Still More of the Prisoner's Depravity Shown Up.

A DISGUSTING PICTURE OF HIS ABOMINABLE CONDUCT.

He Gives an Extra Amount of Trouble to Court and Counsel by his Contemptible Insolence to Witnesses—The Cord Tightening about His Neck.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

[Continuation of Thursday's Session.]

Guiteau said he did not want to marry his wife in the first place.

Witness—(ignoring interruption)—and about the 30th of April, 1875, he was summoned to appear before the advisory committee to answer to the charge of gross immorality. There were three counts to the charge. First, he took money which his wife earned by working in a hotel in the country, and which was remitted him for his support.

Prisoner—(interrupting)—That's absolutely false, doctor; I never heard that before.

Witness—(still ignoring interruption)—And spent it in improper relations with other women.

Prisoner—(with excitement)—That's false. If my wife told you that, she told you a lie.

Witness continued his narrative. The second count was in being guilty of frequent acts of violation of his marriage vows.

The prisoner again breaking in—I only married that woman on ten hours' notice, and that's reason enough why I could not live with her.

Witness—The third count was that as a result of those repeated acts of infidelity he was suffering from a vile and loathsome disease.

The prisoner—That's false.

Witness—Those charges were read to prisoner by myself in presence of the committee.

Prisoner—That's erroneous. I beg to differ from you.

The court—(severely)—Keep quiet. Let the witness go on.

Witness—I recited those charges to prisoner, and he acknowledged them, and gave as his excuse that his wife was absent, that nature's demands had to be met and he could not resist the enticements of lewd women in the streets. He was pressed to know whether he felt a sense of guilt, whether there was any consciousness of remorse or repentance for the past or any promise of reformation for the future. The church was desirous to deal fairly. The gentlemen on that committee were gentlemen who were above anything like unfairness toward any person.

Prisoner—(In spite of all Scoville's efforts to repress him)—"I remember this; I took back my contradiction to what the doctor said, because, upon thinking it over I find it correct. The men on that committee said they had been in the same boat themselves and for that reason they felt a sympathy. They thought that if a man was unfortunately married he had a right to get out of it."

Scoville objected to the evidence as entirely inadmissible and court sustained the objection.

Prisoner—(excitedly)—"I never had but one interview with him, (alluding to witness); I recall it now. I was formally excommunicated and let the whole thing go by default, because I was in Chicago. I have been strictly virtuous for 6 or 7 years—mark that down. You are picking up my whole record from infancy, and I say its outrageous.

District Attorney—We present this testimony because we want to show that what defense calls insanity is nothing more than devilish depravity.

It was with some difficulty that the applause which greeted this remark could be quelled, and the marshal led out of the court room a lad who had been particularly noisy. The court stated that upon a recurrence of applause he would order the room cleared.

When order had been restored witness resumed his testimony, and said that it never occurred to him for a moment that the prisoner was other than sane.

Prisoner throughout the examination kept up a running discussion with witness, counsel and court. The court repeatedly ordered him to keep quiet and allow the witness to speak, but he continued in his denunciation of the prosecution for its impertinence in raking up my record." Scoville also became indignant and angry at the prisoner's outbreaks, which prevented him from finishing his questions, and at times declared to him "I will clear out if you don't stop. You must be still. You must be still!" but neither the court nor counsel could repress the prisoner.

When the cross-examination was closed the prisoner, looking up at the clock, announced it was 3 o'clock and time to go home. He also inquired, "How many more witnesses like that have you, Col. Corkhill? I think it is an outrage on the public. If you had to pay some of that money yourself you would go slow." Court adjourned.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.

The criminal court opened promptly at 10, and Dr. McArthur again took the stand.

Guiteau shouted out, "Your honor."

Scoville—Keep still, please.

Guiteau—Well, then you state it at once. If you don't, I will.

Scoville then addressed the court and objected to the character of evidence which was given by witness, on the ground that evidence as to any other crimes could not be introduced when prisoner is on trial for this particular offense. He desired all such evidence stricken out.

Guiteau here broke in excitedly and shouted out, "It is purely in the nature of a confessional. McArthur is not an expert or lawyer, and I object to him telling the jury and American people, facts which I told him years ago in regard to my history."

Court ruled that the evidence could be admitted as tending to show the general character of the prisoner.

Corkhill—Did you ever see anything in prisoner to indicate insanity?

Answer—No, sir; I never did.

Guiteau here broke in a noisy harrangue, and despite the warning of the court and expostulations of counsel, proceeded to express his opinion of Dr. McArthur, in terms not delicate, and turning to the reporters' table, he declaimed for some minutes against the scandalous reports of his character, and singling out the reporter of the Republican, shook his fist at him threateningly.

Dr. McLean Shaw testified that Guiteau told him he was bound to have notoriety, somehow or other, and he might kill some big man and imitate Wilkes Booth.

At this the prisoner became very violent and abusive.

Corkhill desired the court to restrain the prisoner, when Guiteau turned to him and said: "You go slow, Corkhill. You are spotted, and as soon as this business is over the president will remove you."

Witness allowed prisoner to occupy a desk in his law office at Chicago some months. He seemed to have a good deal of collection business and went in and out like any business man.

Guiteau continually interrupted.

Finally witness said to him: "It seems your close relations with the Deity of late have corrupted your morals."

Scoville cross-examined witness and became very angry and much excited at some of his replies. Testimony in chief was not broken.

W. S. Caldwell, physician, treated L. W. Guiteau in his last illness and never detected any evidence of mental unsoundness.

Geo. W. Plummer was called.

Guiteau immediately shouted: "I owe that man $20; but it has cost the government $200 to get him here. I think the president's attention had better be called to the way you are squandering government money. (To Corkhill)—He might bounce you at once. You will cost the government $200,000 or $300,000 at this rate. (Prisoner laughed heartily at this sally and said, "Well, that ain't so bad, Plummer, for a western man."

Did you ever see anything in his conduct that indicated unsoundness of mind? was the next question.

No sir, replied witness, nothing whatever. He seemed to be a man of ability, vain and conceited, but then he had "late from New York," on his card, and we expected the rest.

This convulsed the court.

Stephen English, editor and proprietor of the Insurance Times of New York, took the stand.

Guiteau called out, "This man was in Ludlow street jail and I got him out for $300."

Witness gave the circumstances under which he became acquainted with the prisoner. Witness was in jail under $40,000 bonds, charged with libel. Prisoner acted as his attorney.

Guiteau frequently and noisily interrupted the witness, calling him a liar and perjurer. At one time he shouted, "there is not an insurance man in New York that does not know what a fraud you are."

Witness continued—The prisoner swindled me out of $300 and also swindled many poor creatures in jail by promising to help them and getting their money and then never raising a finger in their behalf.

Guiteau shouted at witness "why, I wouldn't spit on the street, you old scoundrel, I'll get some insurance men to show you up, you old fraud."

Witness was asked if he ever detected any signs in the prisoner of insanity and replied on the contrary, he was a remarkably clearheaded, shrewd lawyer. He completely outwitted me.

Warren G. Brown, attorney-at-law of New York, was counsel for Mrs. Guiteau in obtaining a divorce from the prisoner. He believed the latter perfectly sane.

Guiteau, (excitedly)—I want to know, Corkhill, what all this kind of evidence has got to do with the real issue of who fired the shot that killed Garfield, the Deity or I. I think it's devilish mean to rake up my character in all its details. The only issue here is who fired that shot the Deity or I. Put that home, Corkhill, and think it over till to-morrow morning. I want to know what all this has to do with the question of my sanity or insanity on the 2d of July. As I have told you before I had time enough to go crazy a hundred times in the interval.

Recess.

Guiteau asked how many witnesses Col. Corkhill would have. "Can you give us any idea."

"No," replied the district attorney, "no definite idea."

Corkhill then read in evidence some legal papers in the case of English against Guiteau. After reading one of them the prisoner exclaimed, "That's a square transaction, Colonel. That knocks your total depravity theory on the head."

Charles V. Hoehle, a lawyer of New York city, was then called on and testified to a number of claims which the prisoner had collected for one of his clients.

When he concluded, prisoner declared he would not give ten cents a bushel for all of them, and demanded to know the amount of the claims he had collected.

Witness—The items collected amounted to $685 12.

Prisoner, excitedly—Do you claim that I collected those claims? Is that your business, Mr. whatever-your-name?

Witness, not noticing the interruption—My client wanted me to see whether or not I could get the money for him.

Prisoner—That was eight years ago. You would not pay a hundred dollars and I would not deliver them up.

Witness was constantly interrupted by prisoner declaring his testimony false.

Witness considered Guiteau sharp, keen and rational.

Prisoner—"That was eight years ago. It has a great deal to do with this case, hasn't it, colonel," in an ironical tone to the district attorney. "You produce those notes," alluding to notes Hoehle said he received from Guiteau, he shouted wildly, to witness "or else get off that stand a disgraced man. If you come to do other over me you must produce those notes or a now yourself a liar."

To his sister, Mrs. Scoville, who was trying to restrain him, he said: "You keep quiet and mind your own business. I don't want any more talk from you in this case." "It makes me mad," he continued violently, "to think prosecution should attempt to ruin my professional character, when they know it is a shame! These men, Corkhill and Porter, should slobber over my character. They have been digging up my professional record, and they have not found anything against me yet and they won't in the law business. I want the American people to understand it, the only thing against me is that I owe some board bills, and that I committed adultery in order to get rid of my wife."

Court—That will do.

Prisoner—I have got through now. I have made my final speech on this matter. It is a disgrace for Corkhill to bring in this evidence.

The prisoner while he was delivering this tirade, was, apparently under control of violent passion. His conduct toward his sister was such, that Scoville was obliged to make her change seats with him, in order that he might be as close as possible to the prisoner and try to repress his violence.

Cross-examination—Did you ever have any conversation with the prisoner on the subject of religion.

A.—No.

Prisoner (contemptuously)—He is a Jew, and a dirty one at that.

Witness said he was not subpoenaed, but came on a telegram from Col. Corkhill, having written Judge Porter about what he knew.

Scoville—Why did you write to Judge Porter?

Witness—Because I thought it was a public duty on the part of anyone who knew anything about the case to divulge it. [Applause.]

Prisoner (contemptuously)—You didn't know anything about it, you miserable Jew.

Have you expressed an opinion that this man ought to be hanged.

Not yet. [Laughter.] I came here for the purpose of having justice done him.

The next witness, Benj. Harrison, U. S. Senator from Indiana, testified he met the prisoner a few times in various parts of the country last year and talked with him, but refused to help him get office. Witness saw nothing in the prisoner's conduct in conversation, that raised in his mind any question of the man's insanity.

Prisoner—You are a good fellow, senator, I remember you very well. Our conversations were generally social.

Court adjourned till Monday.

Guiteau's Cleverness.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—The Times' Washington special says: The testimony of leading people of Freeport has completely upset Guiteau's theory of insanity. All the Illinois witnesses upon the stand showed that insanity in the Guiteau family had not been heard of until after the assassination, and that the whole thing was manufactured for the protection of the miserable assassin. There were quite a number of prominent people in the court room to-day, among them being Gov. Sherman, John Russell Young, Bonanza Mackay, Senator Fair, Rev. De Witt Talmage and several actors. The latter made a special study of Guiteau and their theory about him is rather interesting. Mr Harris, leading man of Mary Anderson's company who has been on the stage for the last thirty years, this evening said: "Guiteau is not insane but is a very good actor. To be sure, he had the advantage of realistic surroundings and is acting for his life, but still he deserves credit for his cleverness. He has not, perhaps, brains enough to be insane, but certainly sufficient to be very dangerously eccentric. One strong evidence against the idea of insanity is the fact that he grows weary at times and rests himself just as a man acting on the stage. Now fatigue is something utterly unknown to a man insane. The brain of an insane man is never wearied. This fellow Guiteau nurses himself up to the acting point, either by pretending to write, or hiding himself behind newspapers which he pretends to read. It is much easier to act where everything is real than where everything is advertised and is artificial as on the stage and in a play. There is no instance where one in the most perfect sobriety could stagger into a bar room and act the drunken man so offensively and effectually, that he would be hustled out by the proprietor. He might do the same act with double realistic force on the stage and not impress the audience at all. Thus it is with Guiteau.

The Devilish Depravity of Guiteau.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—The Times' Washington special says: Devilish depravity is what the government intends to prove in place of what defense have tried to make out in Guiteau's case. There never has been a time during the trial when Guiteau has made himself so thoroughly obnoxious as to-day. It appears as if the prisoner was beginning to realize how tight the halter is being drawn about his neck. In his utterances to-day he had, the appearance of exasperation and there is no doubt he is struggling under the dread of a terrible fear. The very atmosphere in the court room now savors of conviction and Guiteau has sense enough to appreciate the situation.

First, they ask for peace; second, land enough to live on. They don't wish to live under the American government, and therefore wish to make peace with the governments of Sonora and Chihuahua. General Terrazas told them they would not be permitted under any circumstances to raid upon the people of Arizona; that would have to live in peace, and in no event would they be allowed to leave their reservation. The Indians are moving among the people peacefully and Mexicans visit their camps daily. Gen. Terrazas has 400 troops and the national guard ready to be called out at a moment's warning.

The vessel cleared from Humboldt on the 10th November, laden with railroad ties. The Jordan was 181 tons register. Although no details have been received of the loss, it is supposed the captain and crew are saved. The vessel was insured for $11,000.

Train Wreckers' Cases Continued.

AUBURN, Cal., Dec. 9.—This morning, owing to the absence of General Hamilton, attorney for defense, Judge Myers discharged the jury in the Frazier case, and continued all the train-wrecker cases for the term.

UTAH.

The Salt Lake Trouble.

SALT LAKE, Dec. 8.—For some time past there has been a conflict between the liquor dealers and local authorities. Judge Hunter has ruled against the authorities of the city council to impose any license fee more than the cost of issuance. He also intimated that the territorial statute was the right law to proceed under, instead of the municipal ordinance, although the cases were within the city limits. The county court then took the matter in hand under the statute and cases were tried before the justice's court. The liquor dealers appealed to the district court, but would not deposit the costs required by law. Judge Twiss decided that the fees must be paid, and several liquor dealers failing to do this, an execution was issued and the sheriff seized the saloon goods to cover the costs. It was done quietly. Other dealers have now paid their costs and the cases will be determined in the district court. No force has been used on either side, and reports to the contrary are untrue.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

Quarantine at Tacoma Raised.

NEW TACOMA, Dec. 9.—No new cases of smallpox or varioloid for 17 days. All in quarantine are convalescing, and Dr. Wing, health officer, says all will be out by Tuesday next. Olympia has just telegraphed that the quarantine against this city is raised, the farmers having commenced to bring in produce, business is reviving and we will, within 24 hours be restored to communication with the rest of mankind.

A Strange Surveying Party.

SEATTLE, Dec. 9.—The Evening Chronicle claims to be reliably informed that there are now two parties of railroad surveyors in the immediate vicinity of Snoqualmie Pass who do not belong to the Northern Pacific railroad company, but are thought to be in the employ of the Utah and Northern. There is no doubt, it says, that two parties are at the place indicated and that they are not Northern Pacific men. The only question of uncertainty is whether they are operating for the Utah and Northern or some other company.

Trouble between Railroads.

The same paper is further informed of four different companies, each having many men employed, in securing coal lands on Green river and in opening veins of coal. Difficulties between forces of different companies are of frequent occurrence. The Oregon Improvement Co. and Northern Pacific has quite a wrangle about a piece of land recently. The N. P. men drove the O. I. Co. employes off, but the last named went and secured reinforcements to the extent of 17 men armed with rifles, and coming back went to fight the employes of the first named company. Thus far no one has been hurt.

Coal Lands Discovered.

The different companies have found excellent coal, semi-bituminous, in great abundance. The veins average all the way from two to eight feet in width. The whole region is being thoroughly prospected, and it is found that King county is almost one bed of coal of the first quality.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Victoria Notes.

VICTORIA, Dec. 9.—The bark Tiger arrived in Esquimalt yesterday morning from Hastings' mills and after a ripping screw proceeded to sea.

The tug Pilot left for Departure Bay yesterday afternoon to bring down the J. A. Thomson, coal laden, for San Francisco.

The Litgard company give an entertainment tonight for the benefit of the B. C. Benevolent society. Weather bright and warm.

A FEARFUL CALAMITY.

Burning of the Ring Theater at Vienna, Austria.

HUNDREDS OF PERSONS DESTROYED BY THE FLAMES.

Full Description of the Catastrophe from a Local Journal—A Terrible Scene of Disaster—The City in Mourning over the Loss of Friends and Relatives.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Herald's cable: Yesterday was a fete day in Vienna in celebration of the feast of the Immaculate Conception, but ended with a public calamity unparalleled in the history of Vienna. A few minutes before seven and before the commencement of the second performance in Vienna of Offenbach's latest work, "Les Contes d'Hoffman," the Ring theater, formerly known as the Opera Comique, on the Scotten Ring, the second finest theater in the city, opened in 1873, was discovered to be in flames. The fire quickly spread over and in ten minutes all the city for miles around the theater was steeped in a lurid glow, the reflection of burning pipe. Seven o'clock is the hour for commencement of plays at Vienna theaters and it was feared that the loss of life would be vast. It was known that all the theaters would be crowded, but fortunately the catastrophe happened some minutes before seven. The galleries were already crowded while but a few people had appeared in the boxes and only about a score of people had taken their places in the parquette. Little can be gathered as to the origin of the catastrophe. People who escaped have but a dim idea of what really happened, and the wildest rumors prevail. Those who were among the audience say that suddenly the curtain was raised and fire discovered raging on the stage, and that the usual strife for life by those in the upper galleries commenced. Many sprang from the uppermost gallery and were killed, while of those who remained it is impossible to say how many lost their lives. Death appears to have been due to suffocation. At present hundreds of sanitary litters are being carried toward the theater by swift-footed men, who then bear away their burden of dead. A company of soldiers are still arriving on the ground to relieve other companies who have been assisting the firemen in their duties. At 11 o'clock the inside of the theater was quite gutted, only the beautiful front of the theater being left standing. The four statues of the muse and the gilded angel with trumpet crowning the front were there erect and stood boldly out from the background of the flames, yet unsubdued.

In this theater Adeline Patti generally sings when in Vienna, and Sara Bernhardt recently concluded an engagement. She was engaged to play here again January. Herr Jauner, formerly director of the Grand opera, is director of the Ring theater. The auditorium deserted their posts when the fire broke out. It is probable that the death list will be fully four hundred. Latest reports say that the crowd in the galleries pressed in their despair toward the doors and crushing each other, prevented most of the number from escaping. The smoke and flames completed the work of death in five minutes after the first alarm had been given. Firemen are still at work with torches searching the lowest part of the house. At present it is considered unsafe to enter the uppermost gallery where the dead lie in great masses. Half of Vienna will be in mourning to-day for their friends and relatives. I believe no Americans are among the dead, though it is possible some medical students who frequent these plays in Vienna theaters may be among them.

At 1 o'clock it was discovered that the death roll of the Ring theatre catastrophe was much larger than at first rumored. An American physician who had just returned from a visit to Alsgemeine Krankenhause, told me that he had seen eighty-eight men and fourty-four women laid out in that institution alone. Their faces were black and tongues protruding and froth issuing from their mouths, with all the symptoms of suffocation. When he left Krankenhaus at midnight they were still carrying the dead away. He described the sight as horrible in the extreme. Friends are striving to identify friends and relations their relatives. Women were rushing about almost crazy from fruitless search. By 2 o'clock 240 bodies had been taken out of the theatre. It was thought that a hundred more were still among the ruins.

Reports up to two o'clock were that at of the dead from one gallery ninety corpses were found in a mass. The fourth gallery had not yet been searched. It appears that the men who had charge of the iron screen which should be let down in case of fire, thus dividing the stage from the auditorium, neglected to do so.

The conductor of Her Majesty's Opera Company, Signor Arditi, says that the theater was formerly known as the Opera Comique, and was one of the largest and handsomest in Europe. It was very much liked by theatrical people, it having been used for grand opera, comic opera, concerts and dramatic presentations. It was to Vienna what the Academy of Music is to New York city. Its seating capacity was about 2000, and its decoration very elaborate and beautiful.

Another Account.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—Two hundred bodies have been recovered from the ruin of the Ring theater. The fourth gallery has not yet been explored. It is believed that not a single person escaped from that gallery and that very few escaped from the third gallery. The corpses last recovered are little more than charred fragments. Gross neglect is charged against the management of the theater. The law prescribes the use of oil lamps in corridors of theaters, so that exits shall be discovered in event of the failure of gas, but this precaution was utterly neglected. The person in charge of the iron curtain between the stage and auditorium, appears to have fled at the first alarm.

Relief for the Sufferers.

VIENNA, Dec. 9.—The lower house of reichrath adjourned to-day at the suggestion of the president, after several sympathetic speeches. Hope was expressed that an ample fund would be raised for the relief of sufferers by the fire. Ten thousand florins were subscribed on the bourse this morning in aid of the families of the victims of the theater fire, who are probably far more numerous than was at first believed. Business on the Bourse was suspended during the morning.

A Local Newspaper Report.

The Wiener Allgemeine Zeitung, whose office is exactly opposite the ill-fated Ring theater gives a graphic account of the catastrophe, of which the following is an extract:

We write with death in our hearts, unable to find words to describe the pain which we suffer. A terrible calamity befell our city to-day. The Ring theater, formerly known as the Opera Comique, is in ashes, and hundreds of human beings are victims of the catastrophe. Nothing like this horror has ever occurred before in this city. At ten minutes before seven a fire broke out as the theater was pretty well filled, but happily not entirely crowded. A considerable number of people were still in the foyer and in the dressing rooms, and a dense mass of carriages occupied the Scholtenring. It had just commenced to snow, and in the theater auditorium there was the usual bustle before the commencement of the performance. People were walking up and down looking for their places, and the noise of turning down seats was heard on all sides. The boxes were still empty, but the balcony and galleries were filled. On the stage everything was in a state of activity and bustle, working men removing scenery, etc. Offenbach's comic opera "Les Contest de Hoffman" was to be performed for the second time. Some of the singers and actors had already taken their places on the stage in costume, but a large number, however, were still in the dressing rooms in the hands of costumers and hair-dressers. The overture had not yet begun.

How the fire commenced cannot yet be definitely stated, and probably it never will be known. According to one version the scenery was ignited by a spark from the electric machinery. According to another, a workman with an alcohol lamp caused the disaster. The former version is the more likely one. Director Holmesburger, who was upon the stage, was the first one to notice the fire. In a moment after the flies were wrapped in flames and the network of wood, ropes and canvas was burning like tinder. People on the stage were stupefied with fear at first and they speedily took flight in the most terrible confusion towards the ladies dressing rooms on the left of the stage, where a small staircase led to Hohenlaufer strasser. In a moment the curtain flew up and a draft blew it hither and thither, until like a fiery tongue, it darted back and forth from auditorium to stage. The fire soon became master of Ring theater "Fire! fire! The Ring theater is on fire!" was the cry that went from mouth to mouth. On Ring strasse, the flames were already bursting through the roof, and cries, such as Vienna never heard before, filled it. They seemed not like the cries of human beings, but such woeful accents as can be heard only in the death struggle. The scene was indescribable. All those inside the ill-fated building, were pressing their way towards the street which was crowded at all points. The audience from the theater struggled and crushed each other and confusion reigned supreme. Suddenly cries were heard from windows of the rear leading to the Ring. The balcony over the entrance was soon emptied, and the cries of those at windows and of those from within the theater, were awful, and swelled louder and louder. The mass of people in the street was growing denser constantly.

The morning papers publish long heartrending accounts of the catastrophe. Most of them place the dead at 400, with persons who were in the fourth gallery yet to be heard from. The number will be swelled to 500 at the least. Even the police seem reluctant to speak of the extent of the disaster in the upper gallery, and neither firemen nor soldiers have as yet dared to penetrate the dreadful scene. Firemen who had been assisted in bringing out bodies from the third gallery, being asked "How many persons do do you think are in the fourth gallery?" answered "Two hundred, and possibly three hundred. Who can tell? They are there in thick masses. We shall not know how many are dead until the people of Vienna have sent in their list of missing ones to the police."

The origin of the fire is not yet established to a certainty, but of the cowardice of firemen on the stage and attendants who should have let down the iron screen and of general want of provision to prevent such a catastrophe, there remains no doubt. The theater itself was a very handsome edifice as far as interior was concerned, and was apparently constructed with a view to exaggerate such a catastrophe as that of last night. The stairs and passage ways were laid out in a strangely complicated manner, so that it needed a good knowledge of the place to find his way at all in and out of the theater. These peculiarities were noted on the day of opening the theater, the 10th of January, 1874, when "Barbiere de Seviglia," was performed. These stairways and passages last night proved fatal to many who had already escaped the horrors of suffocation inside the auditorium.

An Actor's Narrative.

The following is the narrative of Herr Lindman, an actor engaged in the theatre: "It was a quarter to seven and the second signal had been given to actors that in a quarter of an hour the performance would begin. I was in my dressing room and on hearing the alarm I rushed on the stage and found myself in a sea of flames. A violent draught of air arose and a perfect column of fire seemed to rush against the curtain, which it quickly pierced. Then a stream of fire poured into the theater and up to the galleries. I only heard one single horrifying scream, a single cry of unspeakable terror and fearful despair." He then described the escape of members of the chorus flying to reach the doorway and escape from the fire.

Other Accounts.

Inspector Nitzol escaped from his dwelling on the upper story. He describes the fearful scene in the auditorium as follows: The people lay there in heaps, and many in the strangest postures. Some had their hands stretched out imploringly, and there were others whose nails were driven into the flesh in pain and despair.

A lady who was in the third row of the parquette at the time of the disaster says: I was just about to take out my opera glass from its case when suddenly I remarked that the curtain was driven out violently toward me. A sheet of fire poured out immediately after over the seats. I grasped my friend by the arm and hurried towards the central entrance, but in a moment all lights were extinguished, and we were in complete darkness. Only by keeping firm hold of the railing were we able to grope our way down the staircase. Suddenly to my horror I found my friend no longer clung to me. I screamed out her name, and to my delight I was answered. She caught hold of me again and we rushed out through the darkness with the living mass of fugitives and were saved.

Official reports state that of 157 bodies taken to hospitals 90 are those of men, 41 those of women and 26 so badly burned that the sex is indistinguishable. It appears that five water taps above the stage, which might have been of material assistance in checking the fire at the outbreak were not used in consequence of the panic which ensued.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.

Chair appointed Sherman, Pendleton, Dawes, Lapham, Bayard and Morgan, to prepare memorial on the death of President Garfield. A large number of private bills were introduced.

After the morning hour Morrill spoke on the tariff commission bill. The speaker said: Our nearest approaches to free trade have been seasons of national disasters, as were the years of 1833, 1847 and 1857; and the further we had receded from free trade the better has labor fared and greater had been the material educational advancement of the country. Evidences that with free trade, prosperity in Great Britain is on the wane, were apparent in 5000 houses in Sheffield and 10,000 in Birmingham now marked "To let." He contended the British policy has been everywhere regretted. As a result of this policy British agriculture was now threatened with ruin by foreign competition, and Lord Derby in a late speech to Lancashire farmers had suggested the desperate remedy of emigration of some 500,000 of them, so those who remained might farm on better terms. Moreover there were recent evidences of a change of British opinion to the extent that while free trade would be the best thing for England if other nations would follow her example it was not the best thing for her if left itself adherent. The axiom of British free trade economy that for any branch of manufacture to rest on safe foundations it was indispensable that skilled labor and raw material should be indigenous, if applied to the British Islands would strip them of a great share of their industry, as cotton, hemp, silk, lumber and other articles and various machinery were not home products. Referring to the custom adhered to on the English turf of handicapping horses for the protection of native thoroughbreds against competitors from abroad, Morrill suggested if English horses could with propriety be given this advantage as against our Parole and Iroquois, nations younger and less experienced in manufacture ought not to submit to be distanced by previous winners in many contesting fields. Yet the owners of Manchester and Birmingham, many years old, refused to be comforted when they were fairly handicapped by a protective tariff in a match with Atlanta and Indianapolis two year olds. He continued with reference to the prosperous condition of our agricultural community, under the protective tariff, in contrast with the poorly fed, scarcely underclothed and downtrodden British farmers, and asserted there was not a state where industries would not be jeopardized by free trade.

Morrill finished at 2:10 and moved reference of the subject to the committee on finance, but on a suggestion of Garland, who desired to be heard on the subject, withdrew his motion. The latter temporarily yielded the floor for some general business, and the subject was informally passed over for the present.

Bills were introduced as follows:

Pendleton, to provide that principal officers of each executive department may occupy seats on the floors of the senate and house. On motion of Pendleton it was referred to a special committee of ten to be appointed by the chair.

Vest, for recording marriages in territories; also to make the wife a competent witness in trial for bigamy in territories of the United States.

Logan, to refer claims of western Cherokees or old settlers to the U. S. court of claims for adjudication.

Cockrell, for investigation and examination of accounts of certain land grant railroads in accordance with the decision of the supreme court, and for full report of results to congress.

The president pro tem submitted the response of the secretary of the interior to the senate's resolution transmitting a list of names of officers, clerks and other employes on the rolls of the department, with salaries, date of appointment, state to which charged, and indication who served in the union and who in the confederate armies; tabled and ordered printed.

Plumb, making trade dollars legal tender at their nominal value for all duties public and private, except where otherwise expressly stipulated in contracts.

Call, granting pensions to soldiers of Mexican war and to soldiers engaged in the Creek, Seminole, and Blackhawk Indian wars.

Miller of California, presented memorials from the board of trade of San Francisco for restrictive measures upon Chinese immigration, and urging prompt establishment of a civil government in Alaska; referred.

A bill was also introduced to amend certain sections of revised statutes concerning taxes on deposits of banks which shall be deposited with any other association, bank or bankers, and which is subject to tax as deposits with such association, bank or bankers. It further exempts from taxation savings deposits in provident associations savings banks and saving institutions and so much of their deposits as has been invested in United States securities.

Cockrell, to amend certain sections of the revised statutes. It provides that every soldier or officer who served in the military or naval service of the United States during the recent rebellion for ninety days and was honorably discharged, and in case of his death his widow and minor children shall be entitled to 160 acres of public land not otherwise reserved or appropriated.

Plumb, to amend section 173, revised statutes of the United States. The bill retires judges of U. S. courts after ten years service at 70 years, and after twenty years service at 65 years.

Voorhees submitted a resolution, which at his instance was tabled and ordered printed for reference to committee on finances, of the recommendation in the president's message in favor of a repeal of acts authorizing the coinage of silver and issue of silver certificates, and their retirement from circulation.

Garland introduced a bill in relation to the presidential succession, upon which he gave notice of his intention to speak when the subject is taken up Tuesday next; tabled.

Ferry, from committee on postoffices, reported back with an amendment the bill granting the franking privilege to the widow of the late President Garfield. He asked unanimous consent for suspension of the rules to consider the bill. In reply to Cockrell he explained that the committee's amendment consisted simply in making the language conform to the requirements of the present revised statutes on postal matters; that otherwise it was identical with precedents in the case of the widows of Presidents Tyler, Polk and Lincoln, and that the report was an unanimous one.

Maxey of the same committee made a like statement in relation to the unanimity of the committee's action.

Bill passed without objection, being the first of the session to pass the senate.

Pending motion for adjournment President pro tem Davis addressed the senate as follows:

Senators: You will pardon me for going outside the rules in calling attention to the fact that the 5th of December, the day on which congress convened, was the 50th anniversary of the day when Isaac Bassett, the much-esteemed doorkeeper of the senate, became connected with this body. A half century ago he entered our service as page through the influence of Daniel Webster. In all the mutations of parties no attempt was ever made to disturb him. Surely no higher tribute could be paid to his fidelity and to his integrity than that he has been so long and so satisfactorily identified with the history of the senate. I am sure the sentiment of all sides is cordially expressed when I wish him health and happiness in the name of the senate of the United States. Adjourned till Monday.

House.

Taylor of Ohio had a resolution to offer for the appointment of a committee to audit the expenses attendant on the illness and death of President Garfield.

Hazelton of Wisconsin objected at the present time.

Mills of Texas then appeared at the bar of the house and was sworn in.

The speaker announced the appointment of the following committees: On mileage, Smith of Pennsylvania, Ryan, Paul, Cobb and McKenzie; on death of President Garfield, McKinley, Pacheco, Belford, Waite, Forney, Dunn, Martin, Davidson of Florida, Stephens, Cannon, Orth, Kasson, Anderson, Carlisle, Gibson, Tingley, McLean, Harris of Massachusetts, Hoar, Donnell, Hooker, Ford, Valentine, Cassidy, Hall, Hill of New Jersey, Cox of New York, Vance, George, O'Neill, Chase, Aiken, Pettibone, Mills, Joyce, Tucker, Wilson and Williams of Wisconsin.

House then adjourned until Tuesday, when introduction of bills will be allowed as if on Monday.

ONE EXPERIENCE FROM MANY.

"I had been sick and miserable so long and had caused my husband so much trouble and expense—no one seemed to know what ailed me—that I was completely disheartened and discouraged. In this frame of mind I got a bottle of Hop Bitters and used them unknown to my family. I soon began to improve and gained so fast that my husband and family thought it strange and unnatural, and when I told them what had helped me they said "Hurrah for Hop Bitters! Long may they prosper, for they have made mother well and us happy."—The Mother.—Home Journal.

EQUITABLE
LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY,
120 Broadway, New York.

LIFE INSURANCE PROFITS DEMONSTRATED BY ACTUAL SETTLEMENTS MADE IN 1880.

The Society is now paying maturing Tontine Policies with the following remarkable results:

POLICIES CARRIED TEN YEARS WITH THE RETURN OF ALL PREMIUMS PAID AND INTEREST THEREON.

Example: Policy No. 42,563, issued May 22, 1870. Amount......$10,000 00. Total premiums paid (11 years)......5,394 00. The assured is now entitled to draw, in cash, $6,456.00, having had besides $10,000 of assurance for eleven years; 115 per cent. of premiums paid, returnable in cash.

This example and those which follow show that

LARGER PROFITS ARE PAID POLICY-HOLDERS THAN ARE NOW DECLARED BY ANY OTHER COMPANY.

Example: Policy No. 38,543, issued Dec. 20, 1870. Endowment 20 years. Tontine Period ten years. Amount......$10,000 00. Total premiums paid (10 years)......7,538 00. The assured on Dec. 20, 1880, will be entitled to draw in cash $9,083 20, 120 per cent of the premiums paid. These results, although predicted by carefully made estimates, are

NOT ESTIMATES, BUT ACTUAL CASH RETURNS.

Example: Policy No. 41,621, issued March 27, 1870. Amount......$5,000 00. Total premiums paid......2,408. In this case the assured withdrew, March 27, 1880, in cash, $3,312 45, being 114 per cent. of premiums paid. Many policies will be thus paid in 1881, showing

CASH RETURNS OF FROM 100 TO 120 PER CENT. OF THE PREMIUMS PAID.

Assets securely invested $43,000,000. Surplus, nearly $10,000,000. The Society's popularity is shown by the fact that for the past eleven years the total amount of new policies issued has been greater than that of any other company in existence, thus making its average

ANNUAL NEW BUSINESS LARGER THAN THAT OF ANY OTHER COMPANY.

The Society pays death claims promptly and in full. Its policies are clear and concise, and with no vexatious conditions.

EVERY POLICY BECOMES INCONTESTABLE AFTER THREE YEARS.

ENGLISH CASES.

English newspapers recall the defense attempted in the case of John Bellingham, who assassinated Spencer Perceval, prime minister of England, in the lobby of the house of commons in 1812, as affording a parallel to that set up in the case now on trial at Washington. For Bellingham the defense was the same as that offered in behalf of Guiteau, namely, that he was mad; but the prisoner, who took an eager part in the proceedings, as Guiteau is doing in the present trial, interposed remarks in his own behalf till he convinced the jury that he was not insane, though undoubtedly he was not altogether of sound mind. Although his counsel brought forward witness after witness who testified with more or less directness that the prisoner was mad, the jury answered in the affirmative on the direct issue, "Was the prisoner at the bar, at the time he committed this crime, capable of distinguishing between right and wrong?" Bellingham was executed. The case affords a striking parallel to that of the assassin now on trial at Washington, not only in the features above noted, but in the excuse offered for the crime. Guiteau was an office-hunter, and shot President Garfield because his "claims" had not received attention. Bellingham was an English trader who resided in Archangel, and who claimed that he had received an injury from the Russian government for which the British ministry had not sought the redress he demanded. He was undoubtedly a "crank," but not irresponsibly insane.

In 1843 another case occurred in England very similar in detail to that of Guiteau. It was a case of murder in which insanity was set up as a plea in defense. But the jury on this occasion, misled by skillful counsel as to the actual state of the prisoner's mind, pronounced him insane and therefore not guilty. The verdict gave rise to general discussion as to the extent to which the plea of insanity should be admitted. The house of lords took it up, and propounded questions to the judges in regard to the law. It was asked: "What is the law respecting alleged crimes committed by a person afflicted with insane delusion in respect of one or more particular subjects or persons, as, for instance, when at the time of the commission of the alleged crime, the accused knew he was acting contrary to law, but did the act complained of with a view, under the influence of insane delusion, of redressing or revenging some supposed grievance or injury, or of producing some supposed public benefit?" To which it was answered unanimously by the judges that a person so circumstanced was not to be held not guilty of a crime respecting which the question was duly raised. "There is no law that makes persons in the state described in the question not responsible for their criminal acts. To render a person irresponsible for his crimes on account of unsoundness of mind, the unsoundness should, according to the law as it has long been understood and held, be such as rendered him incapable of knowing right from wrong. He is punishable, according to the nature of the crime committed, if he knew at the time of committing such crime that he was acting contrary to law." That is Guiteau's case precisely.

The question was also asked by the lords: "What are the proper questions to be submitted to the jury, where a person alleged to be afflicted with insane delusion respecting one or more particular subjects or persons is charged with the commission of a crime (murder for example), and insanity is set up as a defense; also, in what terms ought the question to be left to the jury as to the prisoner's state of mind when the act was committed?" It was answered "that the jurors ought to be told that to establish a defense on the ground of insanity it must be clearly proved that at the time of the committing of the act the party accused was laboring under such a defect of reason, from disease of the mind, as not to know the nature and quality of the act he was doing, or, if he did know it, that he did not know he was doing wrong. If the accused was conscious that the act was at the same time contrary to the law of the land, he is punishable, and the usual course has been to leave the question to the jury, whether the party accused had a sufficient degree of reason to know that he was doing an act that was wrong."

Such is the English law. It has since been delivered to American juries as law in the very words above cited, and should be charged as law to the jury at Washington.

LANGUAGES.

A literary journal of New York recently had this paragraph:

> The English language is now spoken by over 100,000,000 people, while neither the French nor German can claim 60,000,000. Mr. Walter, editor of the London Times, concedes that the United States will have a population of 200,000,000 by the year 2000 A. D., and this estimate in accordance with those of other statisticians. English certainly has a good prospect of reaching the pre-eminence once occupied by the Latin or Greek as an universal language.

From the standpoint of the English-speaking race all this appears well founded. But it is vehemently disputed by the French and Germans—by the former on the score of colloquial excellence of their language, which has constituted it the medium of diplomatic communication all over the world, and by the latter on the ground that the language of Luther, Goethe and Humboldt is the cosmopolitan vehicle of philosophical and literary expression. To this it may be replied that the English language is emphatically the language of commerce. It has been asserted, without contradiction, that a man may transact business in the English tongue in every trade centre in the world. All large business houses in non-English countries have an English speaking clerk or correspondent as a necessity. As a matter of fact, it is further affirmed that no one speaking only English can "stop at" any hotel in the civilized world of any consequence without finding some one who can understand and interpret his orders for service.

Col. John Weiss Forney died at Philadelphia yesterday morning. He was born at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, Sept. 30, 1817. Entering journalism early in life, he published several democratic papers successively in his native state until 1851, when he was elected clerk of the national house of representatives, an office he held five years. In 1857 he espoused the opinions of Stephen A. Douglas, established Forney's Press at Philadelphia, and opposed the administration of Buchanan with great vigor. He was again made clerk to the 36th congress and supported the national government powerfully throughout the civil war. From 1861 to 1868 he was secretary of the senate. Col. Forney's public position for many years gave him a wide acquaintance with the most prominent and representative men of America, of whom he has left many interesting reminiscences.

Commenting on the favorable notice which Mr. Blaine's letter respecting the United States and the Panama canal received in Paris, the Glasgow Herald says that it is argued by the French that the control of the United States government over the canal will increase the security of the shareholders. The Herald says the meaning of this is that the capitalists see in the renewed claims of the American government a growing belief in America in the future existence of the canal, and a disposition in Washington to regard any rival scheme as impracticable, and unlikely to be carried on.

The Mormon "church" continues to receive accessions from Europe by almost every steamer. By one of the Guion steamers 287 converts arrived in New York a few days ago. A Herald reporter had an interview with one of the missionaries sent out from Utah, who said that his church was prospering in Europe and gaining converts every day; that there were so many on hand there that it was impossible to bring them over to this country as fast as was desired.

Chicago is about to undertake another gigantic enterprise. A roadway has been projected in the lakes in front of the city, at some distance from the shore, and so make an artificial harbor. Railroad tracks and warehouses are to be put upon the roadway. The new harbor is expected to relieve the river from the crowding of vessels and abate the bridge nuisance. The operation would require 12,000,000 or 14,000,000 cubic yards of earth.

The Sunday Oregonian, to appear to-morrow, will be a double-sheet of fifty-six columns, containing excellent matter of great extent and variety, including all the news, telegraphic, local, social, personal and general, with literary articles, dramatic criticism, religious miscellany and discussion, book reviews, and all the features of a fresh and comprehensive Sunday newspaper.

Comptroller Knox of the currency bureau closed a recent lecture in Baltimore on banking by saying that the national bank system need not be dissolved on account of the reduction of the public debt, but could remain legally in existence with but a small issue of circulation and with less than $100,000,000 in United States bonds on deposit.

Senator Sherman recently said: "The measures of this winter's session of congress are likely to be the reduction of taxes, the revision of the tariff, and, I hope, some good law regulating presidential elections and appointments in the civil service."

Scoville's ambition seems to be to make the most of his opportunity in the Guiteau case to advertise himself as a lawyer. It ought to be worth money to him in the future.

MRS SULLIVAN'S DEATH.

Caused by Violence, so the Coroner's Jury Says, but Chief Lappeus thinks Otherwise.

An inquest was held on the remains of Mrs. Sullivan yesterday morning, Messrs. L. J. Forbes, John Carley, G. W. Riley, Wm. Grooms, M. Brown and E. F. Hervey being empaneled for the jury. H. M. Skinner was the first witness called. He gave little or no evidence that could be used as a clue to her death, only stating that he was the regular occupant of the room in which she died, and that upon his giving her the room he locked her in. Her husband, Dan Sullivan, was next examined and did not give any direct testimony connected with her sudden death. Annie Perry testified that on Wednesday night she heard noises in the room Mrs. Sullivan occupied that night, sounding as if some parties were scuffling. Dr. Moyer swore to having seen the woman in the pest-house. The jury then adjourned until 7 o'clock P. M., when Mrs. Hayden, who lives near the Bee Hive saloon, was called. She said that she knew the deceased and had heard screams and the sound of scuffling coming from the saloon. C. F. Brantly, who owns the saloon, gave his evidence, saying that he had seen her twice while alive during the time she was there, once in company with officer Collins and once with Chief of Police Lappeus, and that upon both occasions she wanted water, saying she was sick. He also accompanied Sullivan to her room when they found her dead. Dr. W. E. Cardwell gave a written statement, saying that to judge from the condition of the remains, she came to her death from the effect of violence, and that she had been suffering from a severe case of blood poisoning, but not to such a degree as to cause death. He also said, that inasmuch as there was no direct evidence of the cause of her death, he believed he was right in advancing this theory.

The jury rendered a verdict of death from injuries inflicted by some person or persons unknown to them. The remains were interred yesterday afternoon.

Chief of Police Lappeus, who was the last person who saw the woman alive, says he is perfectly satisfied that she was not foully dealt with. When he saw her at 10 o'clock Wednesday night, she was very sick, and suffering from the effects of long continued debauch, and upon his return to the police station, stated that he would be surprised if she did not die during the night. He accounts for the different bruises on her person, on the ground that in her agony she grew delirious, inflicting them herself.

THE COURTS.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Millinery at cost for the holidays at Mrs. Clarke's.

Gill & Co's stock of holiday goods was never so large in former years as now.

No better and no cheaper gentlemen's furnishing goods in town than at O de & King.

Fishel & Roberts advertise unusual bargains until January 1st., owing to change of firm on that date.

Read the list of valuable presents which J. Levin & Co., 172 First street, propose to give customers for the holidays.

PORTLAND BUSINESS COLLEGE.

The nature of legal contracts, and many points bearing on this question, were presented to the students of the above school, over sixty in number, in an interesting and instructive lecture delivered by X. N. Steeves, of the law firm of Mendenhall & Steeves, last evening. This is a pleasing feature of this important institution of learning, and one that is destined to greatly increase its efficiency. Instruction through the pleasant medium of a lecture is a happy means of gaining useful and desirable information. The next lecture in the course, "The Responsibility of Agents," will be presented on Friday evening, December 23d. The college is in a more prosperous condition than ever before.

AUCTION SALES.

OREGON TO MASSACHUSETTS.

Some time ago, Messrs Hodge, Davis & Co., of this city, read in a Massachusetts paper that Hon. Charles R. Ladd, auditor of that state, was afflicted with an incurable kidney disease, and had been obliged to give up work and return to his home. They immediately sent him a box of their celebrated Oregon Kidney Tea, and from time to time sent him other boxes. A few days ago they received from him the following letter:

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS,
Auditor's Dep't, Boston, Nov. 11, 1881.

Messrs. Hodge Davis & Co: DEAR SIRS—I have no hesitation in saying that I have been much benefited by the use of the Oregon Kidney Tea as a remedy for a kidney difficulty which has troubled me for six or eight years. I can heartily recommend it to those who are similarly afflicted, as a safe and agreeable remedy. I shall test its virtues further, for I have great faith in it as a specific for many diseases of the kidneys. Respectfully yours,

CHAS. R. LADD.

The original of this letter can be seen by calling on Messrs. Hodge Davis & Co., Portland, Oregon, and the Oregon Kidney Tea can be bought of any druggist or dealer, in Oregon or Washington. Price $1 per box.

J. K. Gill & Co. eclipse their usual handsome holiday display this year. Their goods may be relied upon as genuine—just as represented, and sold very low.

One of them cloth hats that Woods the hatter is selling, is just the thing for these damp, chilly days, they are extremely light and at the same time warm for the head, and they are cheap too.

DEALERS.—Do not buy any toys till you see Chas. Hirstel & Co's assignee's stock which has been purchased entire by Mellis Bros. & Co.

People desiring to buy diamonds, watches and jewelry at low prices should remember that they get a written guaranty with every article they buy at Uncle Myers', 181 First street.

One objection in going to J. H. Robbins & Son's store on First street, between Salmon and Main, is that you will only find the newest and most elegantly designed goods of every description for holiday presents in this city.

NEW YORK FREIGHTS AND MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—The freight market continues fairly active, and leading ships in both lines are doing very well, although manufacturers are somewhat behind in deliveries. On this subject shippers are anxious, as they desire to get their orders off by the close of the year. Rates remain steady and firm at last quotations. Tonnage is still rather scarce. An early engagement to note is the David Crockett, which vessel arrived to-day. Steamer freights are quiet and there is lack of freight for the steamer of the 10th. The Mail company hold a meeting to-day at which all the directors were present. The committee appointed by officers of overland railroads reported that they had offered to sell to the railroad company the China line of steamers for a sum aggregating $1,450,000, provided that the railroad companies would enter into an agreement to continue the subsidy of $110,000 a month for ten years. The committee recommended that in case of a refusal of the railroad companies to accept this proposition that the president of the Pacific Mail should be directed to obtain passengers and freight on the best terms obtainable. The report was accepted and the recommendation adopted. It is understood that the railroad companies have refused to entertain the proposition, and that the Pacific Mail line will be reduced immediately to whatever figure is necessary to utilize the full capacity of steamers.

Choice southern spring sold at 35c. Fall wools are very dull. In pulled wools business has been large. Sales of 35,000 pounds at 33½@51c per pound have been made, largely in range of 40@43½c for supers. Foreign wool is firm, and there has been considerable sales of carpet at full prices.

FEEBLE LADIES.

Those languid, tiresome sensations, causing you to feel scarcely able to be on your feet; that constant drain that is taking from your system all its elasticity; driving the bloom from your cheeks; that continual strain upon your vital forces, rendering you irritable and fretful, can easily be removed by the use of that marvelous remedy, Hop Bitters. Irregularities and obstructions of your system are relieved at once, while the special cause of periodical pain is permanently removed. Will you heed this? —Cincinnati Saturday Night.

The supremacy in favor of Hub Punch with hot or ice water, milk, etc., is a fact generally admitted by connoisseurs. Taken hot it will dissipate chills and colds.

Sold by all Grocers, Wine Merchants and Druggists. Trade supplied by Richardson & Harrison, Agents for Pacific coast, San Francisco.

I know that persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of sexual disease have a delicacy in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance and permit those diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted, their organizations broken down and the hope of future happiness blighted; until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.
